The Top Indoor Golf Operators and Facilities in the US

Indoor golf is one of the fastest-growing sports and business categories in the United States. There are more than 3,000 standalone indoor golf locations nationwide, with an additional 2,000 golf courses incorporating indoor golf technology. These facilities support a wide range of uses, including instruction and coaching, social entertainment, corporate meetings, tournaments and events, and year-round practice.

Who are the leading indoor golf operators in the U.S., and which franchises are experiencing the fastest growth?

Find Your Fit: Exploring the Top Golf Simulator Technologies

Indoor golf is booming, and today's simulator technologies make it easier than ever to train intentionally – whether you're grinding through winter or using data-driven insights to improve your weekly practice. But with so many platforms and launch monitors on the market, how do you choose the right one for you?

Here's a quick, friendly overview of some of the most common simulator platforms available at Golf Canada member facilities. While there are other technologies out there, these are the platforms most golfers will encounter. Each facility listed on the Golf Canada website and in the Golf Canada App specifies the platform they use, making it easier to find the experience that suits your game.

Glow Golf Available at Indoor Golf Facility in York County

YORK COUNTY, Pa. — The weather inside may be frightful, but the neon lights are delightful at Genesis Golf in Stewartstown, York County.

The popular nine hole, indoor, glow-in-the-dark miniature golf course is available for a limited time. "It is our Growth of the Game initiative to introduce people to the game of golf for the first time if they have never done it or have done simulated golf. It's designed to take that anxiety down, have a lot of fun, get a little nostalgic, so we've got the nine Glow Golf holes and then you move through the rest of the facility and the simulators," said Kimberly Carl.

3 Reasons Why Golf Clubs Without Indoor Practice Facilities are Missing A Trick

In my job, I am lucky enough to visit some excellent facilities that truly understand what golfers want and how to deliver it.

In recent years, I have noticed an increase in the number of clubs offering indoor practice facilities to their members and guests - and I can't believe it isn't happening everywhere.

There is obviously the cost implications to consider, but with the wonderful array of options now available in the best golf simulators and best launch monitor markets, this has helped to make prices much more competitive.
